
Re: Order not Showing on Site

13 messages

Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>
To: customercare@7forallmankind.com

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 10:24 AM

Please see above and advise. Attached is the confirmation email. Thank you.

Chase

null

 Your 7 For All Mankind order confirmation.pdf
415K

7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>
Reply-To: 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>
To: Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 10:29 AM

Hi Charles,

Thanks for reaching out!

After review, your order was successfully submitted.

Please let us know if there is anything else we can help with.

Thank you,
Amanda
Customer Service Representative

Pinterest|Facebook|Instagram|X

On Thu, Sep 25, 2025, at 03:24 PM, Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com> wrote:

This is the first email you've received from this external sender.

Do not click links or open attachments unless it is an email you expected to receive.

[Quoted text hidden]

Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>
To: 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 10:35 AM

can you tell me when it will ship?

null

[Quoted text hidden]

7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>
Reply-To: 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>
To: Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 10:41 AM

Hi Charles,

As per our shipping policy, order processing takes 2-4 business days, based upon current volume, payment authorization and inventory fulfillment as stated in the shipping FAQ and at checkout. Processing time does not include transit time which only takes effect once your package has been picked up by the carrier. Once your order has shipped, you will be notified via email with the tracking information.

Please let us know if there's anything else we can do to help!

Thank you,
Amanda
Customer Service Representative

PinterestFacebookInstagramX

On Thu, Sep 25, 2025, at 03:35 PM, Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com> wrote:

This email comes from outside the organization.

Do not click links or open attachments unless it is an email you expected to receive.
can you tell me when it will ship?

null

On Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 10:29 AM 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com> wrote:

Hi Charles,

Thanks for reaching out!

After review, your order was successfully submitted.

Please let us know if there is anything else we can help with.

Thank you,
Amanda
Customer Service Representative

PinterestFacebookInstagramX

On Thu, Sep 25, 2025, at 03:24 PM, Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com> wrote:

This is the first email you've received from this external sender.

Do not click links or open attachments unless it is an email you expected to receive.
Please see above and advise. Attached is the confirmation email. Thank you.

Chase

null

On Thu, Sep 25, 2025, at 03:29 PM, 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com> wrote:

Hi Charles,

Thanks for reaching out!

After review, your order was successfully submitted.

Please let us know if there is anything else we can help with.

[Quoted text hidden]

7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>
Reply-To: 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>
To: "Mrs. Charles Kinslow III" <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 10:50 AM

Hi Charles,

How would you rate the help Amanda gave you?

Your feedback helps us improve and continue providing the best possible service. We appreciate your time!

Thanks!

Customer Service Director

Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>
To: 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 12:07 PM

Can I please cancel my order?

null

[Quoted text hidden]

Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>
To: 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 12:11 PM

I would like to cancel my order. The necessary information should be in the earlier attachment that I included. But I will attach it again for your reference. Thank you.

null

[Quoted text hidden]

 Your 7 For All Mankind order confirmation.pdf
415K

7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>
Reply-To: 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>
To: Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 12:13 PM

Hi Charles,

We apologize, but once an order is submitted, it cannot be changed or canceled. This includes updating the shipping address, changing items, editing or swapping promo codes, or canceling the order. Orders are sent for processing immediately and no changes can be made.

We appreciate your understanding and patience, if there is anything additional we can assist with, please feel free to reach back out.

Thank you,
Amanda
Customer Service Representative

PinterestFacebookInstagramX

[Quoted text hidden]

On Thu, Sep 25, 2025, at 05:07 PM, Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com> wrote:

This email comes from outside the organization.

Do not click links or open attachments unless it is an email you expected to receive.
Can I please cancel my order?

null

On Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 10:50 AM 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com> wrote:

Hi Charles,

How would you rate the help Amanda gave you?

Your feedback helps us improve and continue providing the best possible service. We appreciate your time!

Thanks!
Customer Service Director

On Thu, Sep 25, 2025, at 03:41 PM, 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com> wrote:

Hi Charles,

As per our shipping policy, order processing takes 2-4 business days, based upon current volume, payment authorization and inventory fulfillment as stated in the shipping FAQ and at checkout. Processing time does not include transit time which only takes effect once your package has been picked up by the carrier. Once your order has shipped, you will be notified via email with the tracking information.

Please let us know if there's anything else we can do to help!

[Quoted text hidden]

Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>
To: 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 12:23 PM

That is bullshit. Review the terms on your own webpage per the attachment. Review the other attachments as well. For example, "A company is allowed to enforce its policy as long as it is clearly disclosed to the customer before the sale is complete." Your own policy in the attached FAQ provides for cancellations like this. Let me speak to a supervisor now.

null
[Quoted text hidden]

2 attachments

 Pages from Seven7 Jeans.pdf
251K

 Can a Company Refuse to Cancel an Order_ - LegalClarity.pdf
351K

Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>
To: 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 12:25 PM

Otherwise, you'll be hearing from the Better Business Bureau.

[Quoted text hidden]

--
Charles W. Kinslow IV, J.D., C.P.A. <https://www.linkedin.com/in/experiencedaccountantlawyer>

2 attachments

 Pages from Seven7 Jeans.pdf
251K

 Can a Company Refuse to Cancel an Order_ - LegalClarity.pdf
351K

7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>
Reply-To: 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>
To: Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 12:35 PM

Hi Charles,

We kindly ask that you refrain from using derogatory language. Continued use of such language will result in the termination of the conversation with our customer service representatives.

Your attachment titled "pages from Seven7" is not our brand. Please note, that we are 7 For All Mankind.

All ordering and shipping information is available to view in our FAQ's prior to placing an order. The information is also available to view at checkout.

<https://7forallmankind.com/pages/help-center?hcUrl=%2Fen-US%2Fhow-do-i-change-or-cancel-an-order-1144748>

<https://7forallmankind.com/pages/help-center?hcUrl=%2Fen-US%2Fwhat-is-your-shipping-policy-1144775>

Unfortunately the request to cancel is within a very limited timeframe and may not always be feasible.

Once your order is received, you may request to return via our online return portal.

Thank you,
Amanda
Customer Service Representative

Pinterest|Facebook|Instagram|X

On Thu, Sep 25, 2025, at 05:25 PM, Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com> wrote:

This email comes from outside the organization.

Do not click links or open attachments unless it is an email you expected to receive.

[Quoted text hidden]

We apologize, but once an order is submitted, it cannot be changed or canceled. This includes updating the shipping address, changing items, editing or swapping promo codes, or canceling the order. Orders are sent for processing immediately and no changes can be made.

We appreciate your understanding and patience, if there

(...)

Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>
To: 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 12:43 PM

Review the following and let me know what you think.

Under Federal Trade Commission (FTC) guidelines, a disclosure is considered "clear and conspicuous" if it is difficult to miss and easy for an ordinary consumer to understand. A company cannot bury or hide important terms like a "no cancellation policy" in fine print. The standard is a "performance standard," meaning its effectiveness is measured by whether an average consumer would actually notice and comprehend it.

For a no-cancellation policy to be clear and conspicuous, it must be:

- Prominent: The disclosure must be in a font size, color, and location that makes it easily noticeable. It should not be hidden at the very bottom of a long page or in an "About Us" section.
- Proximate: The disclosure should appear close to the claim or action it qualifies. For an online purchase, this means placing the policy near the "add to cart" or "confirm purchase" buttons, or directly on the product page.
- Presented clearly: The language must be simple, direct, and unambiguous. It should be easily understandable to the intended audience, with "legalese" or technical jargon avoided.
- Unavoidable: In online transactions, the disclosure must be "unavoidable," meaning the consumer must be able to see it before completing the transaction. Merely offering a hyperlink to a terms of service page is generally insufficient if it's the only disclosure. Many websites achieve this with a checkbox that customers must click to agree to the terms before finalizing a purchase.

No, that provision alone is not sufficient and is legally problematic for several reasons. It is what courts call a "browsewrap" agreement, and it is far less likely to be enforceable than a

"clickwrap" agreement, especially for significant terms like a no-cancellation policy

Why the provision is problematic

- Implied consent is weak: A browsewrap agreement relies on the assumption that a customer implicitly agrees to the terms simply by continuing to use the site. This is a very weak form of consent.
- Lacks unambiguous assent: The provision does not require the user to take any specific, affirmative action to show they have read and understood the terms. A clickwrap agreement, where the user must check a box to confirm, is the standard best practice for demonstrating unambiguous assent.
- Notice is insufficient: The user may not actually notice the disclosure. Federal Trade Commission (FTC) guidelines require disclosures to be "clear and conspicuous," meaning they must be difficult for an ordinary consumer to miss. The provision you cited does not meet this standard because it can be easily overlooked.
- The payment screen is the wrong place for the first notice: A payment screen is a high-pressure environment where a customer is focused on finalizing their transaction. The FTC states that any disclosures necessary to prevent an advertisement from being misleading should be presented earlier in the transaction, not just on the order page.
- Distractions are present: The payment screen is often cluttered with other information like the total price, shipping details, and payment options. These other elements can easily draw a user's attention away from the terms and conditions notice, rendering it inconspicuous.

null

[Quoted text hidden]

Chase Kinslow <chase.kinslow@gmail.com>
To: 7ForAllMankind <customercare@7forallmankind.com>

Thu, Sep 25, 2025 at 12:46 PM

The existence of a "no cancellation policy" in a FAQ section on a separate page is not considered clear, conspicuous, or legally sufficient notice. Relying on this placement is a risky practice that is unlikely to hold up if a customer challenges it, especially in the event of a chargeback.

Why an FAQ section is not sufficient disclosure

- FAQs are not legally binding: An FAQ section is typically viewed as an informational tool, not a part of the legally binding terms and conditions. A court would likely view placing a critical term like a no-cancellation policy there as an attempt to hide the information.
- Assumes the customer will look: Placing the policy in an FAQ assumes the customer will know to look there, find the right question, and read the answer before making a purchase. The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) "clear and conspicuous" standard does not allow for this assumption.
- Lacks explicit consent: Even if a customer happens to find and read the FAQ, it does not constitute express, informed consent. To show unambiguous agreement, companies should require a customer to take an affirmative action, such as checking a box, during the checkout process.
- Context of the payment page: The "browsewrap" notice you mentioned—"By continuing you agree..."—is already a weak form of consent. This inadequacy is compounded when the critical details are buried on another page, removing them from the immediate context of the transaction.
- Separation from the checkout flow: The FTC's guidance stresses that important disclosures should be "proximate" to the relevant claim or action. Hiding the no-cancellation policy on a separate FAQ page violates this principle by divorcing the disclosure from the act of payment.

null

[Quoted text hidden]